

CHICAGO COUPLE WEDS AT 3 A. M.

Young Andrew Crawford is Married at a St. Joseph Hotel—Evelyn Wright His Bride—Wedding the Sequel of a Yachting Romance.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Andrew H. Crawford, a rich young man of the city, and his young bride, the late Andrew Crawford, capitalist, chose an extremely early hour for his wedding.

He was married at 2 o'clock in the morning at the hotel room of Miss Evelyn Wright of No. 23 Jackson Park terrace.

Miss Wright is a member of the Chicago Yacht Club and is an enthusiastic and daring sailor.

The wedding took place in the parlor of the Whitcomb Hotel, in St. Joseph, and none of the relatives of either Mr. or Mrs. Crawford was present at the ceremony.

None, indeed, knew of its imminence. The reason for the wee hour was chosen for the ceremony was the happy pair's failure to obtain a train to their marriage. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend H. S. Robles of the St. Joseph Congregational Church, who was called in by telephone.

The romance which culminated in the wedding began in a storm on Lake Michigan early last summer, near Mackinac Island. Andrew Crawford's yacht is the Nannie and Miss Wright the Aileen.

The Aileen was being buffeted severely by the high wind and Miss Wright was having difficulty in keeping the boat afloat. She told the girl to hold on to her glass, and fearing that her boat would be capsized, Crawford tacked slowly toward her in the hope of being assistance.

A favorable shift in the wind took the smaller craft quickly in toward the shore, but until Miss Wright had lost two of her fingers, one of which she had attempted to launch.

One of the boats was picked up by Crawford after the wind had subsided and the two were soon together again.

During the early autumn they saw less of each other, and the adventure which brought affairs to a climax a few months ago was only by coincidence. Miss Wright took her boat to the Prescott dock in the dusk of the gray day which preceded the opening of the lake to navigation, with a long, low, other boat. It was nearly dark when she left the boat, and she had noticed that it was scraping sides with rocks. She had been unable to have moored at the dock by its owner.

"It's strange, how they found their way together," said a voice as she stepped from the boat. "I was so afraid of getting lost against the gray colors of the forbidding sky, as the romantic novel might say, before we recognized Crawford, who had been waiting for her arrival and had come down to the dock."

"Yes, it is strange," replied the girl.

"Perhaps we had better let them stay together," she added.

Young Mr. Crawford came over to Chicago and arranged with Miss Wright to go with him to St. Joe. They missed the afternoon train, however, and had to wait.

The wedding ceremony was witnessed only by the hotel clerk, W. J. Leslie, and Miss Sarah Carey, a Chicago acquaintance of Miss Wright.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, Oct. 28.—Is a man who is an agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals also bound to protect every living thing from the animal and the child?

That seems to be a burning question just now in some quarters. It is known that there is condemnation for him who "feeds the birds" and that he, on the other hand, should a man allow himself to be plagued by insect pests to the extent of absolute torment rather than to take arms against a swarm of such vermin.

Major L. N. Middlebrook has for years been officer of the S. P. C. A. at Bridgeport, Conn., and will probably resign if he is forced to leave his supervision over all-estimated nature.

"Major Middlebrook, I am only a little boy, and I want to come home to you. I fear if I cannot go without writing to you, I have been visiting my aunt here, and about three weeks ago she sent me to your office. I wanted to tell you the door to your room was open and I went in, but there was not anybody there."

I waited a little while, and then I saw something that made me sad, but I said I must write and told my aunts, for my aunts always learned us children at home to be kind to all dumb animals, even to insects. And you, as an agent of the same society, I want to say to you, Major, that something in your office, and in your papers says bugs are some of the worst instruments of torture ever invented. It was written by your paper."

They are dead and dazed on it before they die with their legs and wings pulled off. It is terrible. I know my aunts will say I do right to write this." —M.
